Core philosophy

We are aware that it is only in their work, in the formation of values, that individuals build up their system of values and manage to nurture and impart them to the younger generations around them. In the past this used to happen in the family. In the industrial era and with the advance of technologies companies are the only place where this can happen. Only companies embracing such role can be members of the UN Global Compact Network in Bulgaria because they employ free people proud of their work and output, the people who will ensure and guarantee the global sustainable development.

I am happy to see that the Global Compact in Bulgaria has found such a dedicated group of champions committed to promoting corporate responsibility.

I trust that the UN will be able to rely on Bulgaria's businesses as partners in advancing our common values for prosperity and sustainability.
